A NEW NOVEL

By the Author of "The Visits of Elizabeth"

The Reflections of Ambrosine

By ELINOR GLYN

THE great popularity of "The Visits of Elizabeth" will make the announcement of a new novel by the same author most welcome. The charm of these new "Reflections"—their wit, humor and, above all, their bright, keen observation—not only abundantly fulfil the promise of the author's former work, but will win for the author hundreds and hundreds of new admirers. It is a love story, pure and tender, told in the author's inimitable way, illumined by sympathetic analysis of maidenly emotions.

The Philippine Islands

EXPLORATIONS by early Navigators, descriptions of the Islands and their Peoples, their History, and records of the Catholic Missions, as related in contemporaneous books and manuscripts, showing the political, economic, commercial, and religious conditions of those Islands from their earliest relations with European Nations to the beginning of the nineteenth century.

Translated from the rare originals (Spanish, French, Italian, Latin, etc.), many of which are now published for the first time; edited and annotated by EMMA HELEN BLAIR, A.M., of the State Historical Society of Wisconsin, assistant editor of The Jesuit Relations and Allied Documents, and JAMES ALEXANDER ROBERTSON, Ph.B.; with historical introduction and notes by EDWARD GAYLORD BOURNE, Professor of History in Yale University, chairman of the Historical Manuscripts Commission of the American Historical Association, etc.; and special contributions by well-known scholars and bibliographers. Also a full Bibliography and Analytical Index.

Illustrated with facsimiles of rare and unique originals, manuscripts, maps, portraits, views, etc.

The edition is limited to one thousand numbered and signed sets. Printed in the beautiful Caslon type on Dickinson's hand-made deckled-edged paper. 55 vols. (issued one or two vols. per month until completion; Vol. I. to be published about January 15, 1903). Large 8vo, about 325 pages per volume, cloth, uncut, gilt top. Price, $4.00 net per volume.

The difficulties which confront the people of the United States in the administration of their new insular possessions render this work especially timely and useful. Its chief aims, throughout, are to cast light on the great Philippine problem—by making accessible to the reading public the history of those islands, both religious and secular, and showing the character, customs, and beliefs of the native peoples who inhabit them—and thereby to furnish in a thoroughly and scholarly manner and at a reasonable price the sources of Philippine History.

"This publication is very highly to be commended, as, in the confused state of current information upon the conditions in our insular dependencies, evidence direct from unimpeachable sources is of the greatest importance. The American people realizes its responsibility, but is at a loss to know what should be done, as so much uncertainty exists as to the conditions."—PAUL S. REINSCH, Professor of Political Science, University of Wisconsin.

NOTES IN SEASON.

DOUBLEDAY, PAGE & Co. have in press the 73d thousand of Dixon's "epic of the South" — "The Leopard's Spots." The sales for the last two weeks aggregate 10,541 copies.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have just brought out a very handsome volume on "The Hudson River from Ocean to Source," by Edgar Mayhew Bacon, who treats the noble stream from the historic, legendary and picturesque points of view, and gives over one hundred illustrations and a sectional map; "The Romance of the Colorado River," an account of its first discovery and of explorations from 1540 until the present time, by Frederick S. Dellenbaugh; "The Papal Monarchy," by Dr. William Barry, a new volume in the Story of the Nations Series; also, "The Life and Times of Robert Harley, Earl of Oxford."

JOHN MURPHY COMPANY, Baltimore, have now ready a volume entitled "Onward and Upward," by the Most Rev. John J. Keane, Archbishop of Dubuque, Iowa, former rector of the Catholic University, "a spiritual keynote for each day of the year," which is said to contain the "quintessence of the author's thoughts;" "The Lords Baltimore and the Maryland Palatinate," by Clayton Colman Hall, a work of prime importance to the students of the history of the political institutions of this country; also, a new large-type illustrated edition of the Holy Bible in the Douay version, containing the Old and New Testaments, with annotations, references and an historical and chronological index.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS will publish on the 17th inst. A. H. Savage Landor's new book entitled "Across Coveted Lands," describing a journey from Flushing to Calcutta, overland. The work is of considerable importance just now in view of the rapid development of Russia's designs to reach the Indian Ocean. These plans contemplate the control of Persia, and an outlet through the Persian Gulf, and Landor's book, the result of an extraordinary tour to and through Persia, Beluchistan and Afghanistan, has special reference to the present unfolding of a diplomatic drama for which Russia is believed to have been preparing for many years.

ARTHUR H. CLARK COMPANY, Cleveland, O., announces an extensive and important work on "The Philippine Islands, 1493-1803," giving an account of the explorations by early navigators, and descriptions of the islands and their peoples, their history and records of the Catholic missions, as related in contemporary books and manuscripts, showing the political, economic, commercial and religious conditions of these islands from their earliest relations with European nations to the beginning of the nineteenth century. The material has been carefully translated from the rare originals, (Spanish, French, Italian, Latin, etc.), many of which are now published for the first time, by Emma Helen Blair, of the Wisconsin State Historical Society, one of the editors of the "Jesuit Relations," and James Alexander Robertson. Professor Edward Gaylor Bourne, of Yale, has furnished an historical introduction and notes, and other scholars and bibliographers have made special contributions. The work will be furnished with bibliographic apparatus, facsimiles of rare maps, manuscripts, views, etc. There will be fifty-five octavo volumes, to be issued one or two a month until the work is completed. The first volume is due January 15, 1903.

No stream in America is so rich in legends and historic associations as the Hudson. From ocean to source every mile of it is crowded with reminders of the early explorers, of the Indian wars, of the struggle of the colonies, and of the quaint, peaceful village existence along its banks in the early days of the Republic. Before the explorers came, the river figured to a great extent in the legendary history of the India tribes of the east. The volume is illustrated with views taken especially for it, with many rare old prints now first published in book form.

The Publishers' Weekly.

FOUNDED BY F. LEYPOLDT.

DECEMBER 13, 1902.

The editor does not hold himself responsible for the views expressed in contributed articles or communications.

All matter, whether for the reading-matter columns or advertising pages, should reach this office not later than Wednesday noon, to insure insertion in the same week's issue.

Books for the "Weekly Record," as well as all information intended for that department, should reach this office by Tuesday morning of each week.

Publishers are requested to furnish title-page proofs and advance information of books forthcoming, both for entry in the lists and for descriptive mention. An early copy of each book published should be forwarded, as it is of the utmost importance that the entries of books be made as promptly and as perfectly as possible. In many cases booksellers depend on the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY solely for their information. The Record of New Publications of the PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY is the material of the "American Catalogue" and so forms the basis of trade bibliography in the United States.

"I hold every man a debtor to his profession, from the which, as men do of course seek to receive countenance and profit, so ought they of duty to endeavor themselves by way of amends to be a help and an ornament thereunto."—LORD BACON.

THE DANGER OF OVERSTOCKING.

THE Secretary of the American Booksellers' Association, in his latest report, advises those who have been over-sanguine or inconsiderate in laying in an overstock of net books or protected fiction to push them to the fullest extent possible before the close of the holiday season. The Secretary of the American Booksellers' Association would have the bookseller put these books to the front in the most conspicuous part of the store, and show them to every customer who calls. If necessary, he would offer the salesmen a premium for the sale of slow net books and the overstock of protected fiction. Indeed, he would resort to and exhaust every means and resource to get rid of them at net prices during the next three weeks. He closes with the hint that those who belong to the class that find themselves in the predicament described should guard another season against being tempted with large quantity purchases, and to make it a rule to buy as closely to the demand as possible, reordering in small quantities as often as calls for certain books may warrant.

The advice as to overstocking is sound, and in line with warning given time and again in these columns. Overstocking has been the curse of the retail trade for years, and has been responsible for more demoralization almost than any other error of judgment on the part of the dealer. In these strenuous times when the book of to-day pushes, or is made to push, the book of yesterday out of the race, only to be itself outrun by the book of to-morrow, all but the large dealers in the large towns and cities should err rather on the side of conservatism and buy strictly to his absolute wants and no more, than to speculate or "plunge." The small dealer with a limited constituency should be able to estimate pretty accurately the quantity he is able to sell of any book published. If an unforeseen demand arises he can much more profitably purchase more when it is wanted than he can dispose of a "remainder." Besides, "remainders" are always a temptation, after the rush subsides, to cut prices and to undersell other dealers. And to undersell net books, these days, is to tempt fate.

THE booktrade is entering upon the close of the last month of the second year of reform, with a practically solid front in both branches—publishers and booksellers. Nearly every important interest is represented, and every one in the ranks expresses hope in the ultimate success of the movement. Yet there is danger in overconfidence. It will not do for any one to take it for granted that the reform is an assured fact, and let it take care of itself. It still remains the duty of every one concerned to watch out that the rules remain unbroken, and to give prompt warning of a breach either to the manager of the American Publishers' Association or to the Secretary of the American Booksellers' Association. Above all, it is the duty of every one interested in the reform movement to watch himself and his establishment, to make assurance doubly sure that there is no laxity of zeal in the chief, or error through ignorance or malice aforethought on the part of his subordinates. We may arrive at a time when these precautions will be unnecessary; unfortunately, that time has not yet been reached.

INTERNATIONAL CONGRESS OF PUBLISHERS.

IN our issue of November 15, referring to the work of the International Congress of Publishers, we were misled into announcing that the fifth session of the Congress will take place next year. We are informed by M. Morel of the Permanent Bureau at Berne, that the next Congress will not meet until 1904, and then at Milan. The Executive Committee, however, will have another session at Berne, at the end of May or beginning of June, 1903.

R. H. MACY & CO. AGAINST THE BOOKTRADE ASSOCIATIONS.

ISIDOR STRAUS and Nathan Straus, composing the firm of R. H. Macy & Co., brought suit on December 3, in the Supreme Court, Part 1, New York, to restrain The American Publishers' Association and The American Booksellers' Association from enforcing the rules against underselling; furthermore, they sue for perpetual injunction against defendants "blacklisting" them, also from "resorting to any species of threat to compel them to join either of the associations or to maintain the prices of books." The complaint also asks that a temporary injunction be granted pending the trial of the action; that a referee be appointed to take proof of the damages sustained by the plaintiffs, which damages are put at $100,000. Judgment is further demanded that the "agreements between the associations to maintain prices and prevent competition be declared unlawful and null and void."

The case came up for a hearing before Judge Leventritt on December 10. Ex-Secretary John G. Carlisle and Spielberg & Wise represented the plaintiffs in court. Stephen H. Olin represented the American Publishers' Association and Thaddeus B. Kenneson represented the American Booksellers' Association. The elaborate complaint, based principally upon the affidavits of Messrs. Isidor and Nathan Straus and Miss E. Lillian Kinnear, buyer for their book department, reviews in extenso the action taken by both trade associations to defend themselves against price cutters, all of which is familiar to the readers of THE PUBLISHERS' WEEKLY.

In stating the position of the firm of R. H. Macy & Co., the complaint sets forth that "in pursuance of the adopted and settled policy of their business all sales in their [book] department, as throughout their business, were made for cash, and in no instance for credit, and were made at a smaller profit and therefore at a cheaper price than at other retail stores," and that "the defendants have unlawfully interfered with the conduct of plaintiffs' business, and injured the same by forcing the plaintiffs to adopt secret and cumbersome methods of purchasing books, increasing thereby the expense, and forcing plaintiffs to purchase books at higher prices than other dealers at wholesale obtained the same, and compelling them to purchase books at other cities than in the city of New York, where the plaintiffs conduct their business, and that it was and still is part and parcel of the aforementioned unlawful combination or conspiracy to cause plaintiffs such increased cost of their book supply, and to compel them to adopt unusual and secret methods in their business, and that plaintiffs have suffered and still suffer great damage thereby in loss of profits which they otherwise would have made except for such increased cost to them of the books purchased."

The plaintiffs' lawyer dwelt on the New York State law forbidding the union of interests to maintain high prices on commodities and necessities of life. He said that books were necessary in this civilized age, and that a combination to keep up book prices was plainly unlawful. The law referred to, he said, was enacted by the Legislature in 1897, and was known as the Donnelly act. It was known also as the "anti-trust law," and an opinion of the Court of Appeals had sustained his contention.

Counsel for the American Publishers' Association replied that the American Publishers' Association had arranged that once the publication price of a book had been agreed on it should not be sold at less than the published price, excepting in certain specified cases. Any bookseller who agreed to sell at the net price agreed on could buy books from the members of the association. He said that there had been no discrimination against the plaintiff, the rules of the association applying to all alike. He claimed that the defendants had acted strictly within the law, having agreed to give the book trade a specified discount. He said the associations of publishers and booksellers had done on a small scale just what Congress had done when it passed the Interstate Commerce act, fixing the rates for freight and transportation in all the States.

Justice Leventritt reserved his decision.

PRESIDENT ROOSEVELT'S BOOKS IN SUMPTUOUS EDITIONS.

GEBBIE & Co., Philadelphia, are about to publish in limited editions the complete writings of Theodore Roosevelt in twenty-two volumes. The so-called author's edition will consist of twenty-six sets, four sets of which have already been sold at prices averaging $4,000 each. None is to be sold for less than $3,300. This edition will bear the original autograph signature of both author and publishers, and the artist's proofs of the illustrations will bear the autographs of the artist. The collectors' edition of fifty sets are to be sold at not less than $2,200. This edition will be exactly like the author's edition except that it will not have the author's original autograph. Besides these there will be an edition de luxe of 500 sets at $1,100 and $660 a set according to binding, and a cheaper edition of 650 sets at $385 each. These editions are published by permission of the owners of the copyrights on the President's various contributions to American literature, and it is said that the royalties involved are the heaviest ever paid in the history of book-making. The limitation guarantees are reinforced by the inability of the firm issuing these editions to publish more copies than those provided for by their contracts with the owners of the copyrights. The only addition to this total which has been authorized is a single set for presentation to the author.

COPYRIGHT MATTERS.

COPYRIGHT AGREEMENT WITH SPAIN.

THE State Department on the 1st inst. announced that "the international copyright agreement with Spain of 1895 has now been restored to full effect by an exchange of diplomatic notes."

THE OXFORD PRESS.

AT the October meeting of the English Bibliographical Society, the President, Mr. Falconer Madan, read a paper entitled: "Some Notes on the Oxford Press, with Special Reference to the Fluctuations in its Issues," which is summarized as follows by Mr. Alfred W. Pollard, the Hon. Secretary of the Society: "Mr. Madan began by contrasting the compact and manageable extent of the history of printing in Oxford with the vastness of the London trade, which has discouraged any attempt at compiling a list of London printers after 1640, save two very imperfect essays in Notes and Queries. His own study of Oxford Books had begun from the time when he interleaved a copy of the sale catalogue of the collection of them formed by Philip Bliss, whose books may still be recognized by the manuscript "P" placed before the printed signature "B" on the second sheet. After the brief activity of unofficial presses between "1468" and 1486, and in 1517-1519, there was no printing at Oxford until 1585, though as many as twenty-six volumes wrongly ascribed to the Oxford Press bear intermediate dates. The permanent press was from the first official. It was brought about by no special cause, but rather in consequence of the increased social status of the University due to Elizabeth's policy. To illustrate its history for the next three centuries a chart was shown, in which the point to which the line rose or fell indicated a five-year average of production. For some of the fluctuations no explanation could be offered. Thus there was a rise in 1611, but the publications of the year, though they included Captain John Smith's "Map of Virginia," were mostly sermons, and had nothing special to mark them. In 1625 a steady rise began, due chiefly to the activity of Laud, who obtained from Charles I. privileges on an even larger scale than those which Cambridge had received from Henry VIII., so as to exclude the opposition of the London Stationers in the matter of almanacs, grammars, and Bibles. In 1636 the Press issued an edition of Lilly's Grammar and three Almanacs, with the result (perhaps not unforeseen) that its competition was bought off the next year by the Stationers' Company for £200. Under the year 1629 Mr. Madan noticed, as an interesting point, that in Charles Butler's "Oratorius libriduo," at Sig. A4 verso, are shown specimens of nine types then in use (nonpareil, brevier, (long) premier, pique, (pica,) English, great premier, double pique, double English, (canon,) thus presenting the first English equivalent for a type-sheet. In the same year a request came from Cambridge for the loan of the Greek type presented by Sir Henry Savile (originally cut for his edition of the works of St. Chrysostom.) After the boxes of letters had been duly returned in 1631, the Greek Testament printed with them was published at Cambridge the following year, and Mr. Madan raised the question as to whether Oxford could claim any credit for its production, it being the first Greek Testament printed in either University. Another doubtful point as to an editio princeps was raised over Ussher's text of the Epistle of Saint Barnabas. This was printed off (with the Epistles of Polycarp and Ignatius) in 1642-43, but either because of an error in sheet E, or for some other reason, publication was deferred, and with the exception of one imperfect copy (discovered about 1870) it was destroyed in the fire of October, 1644, which, beginning with an attempt at roasting a pig, anticipated the calamities described in Lamb's essay by devastating one-fourth of Oxford. The next year appeared the Paris edition of the "Epistola Sancti Barnabæ," which is always reckoned as the first.

"The presence of the King and his Court at Oxford during 1642-1645 caused a great mountain to rise suddenly in Mr. Madan's chart, all the activity of the Royalist pamphleteers helping to feed the Oxford Press while it was the King's headquarters. During the next fifteen years the level of production was low, but about 1660 there was another rise, due partly to the Restoration, but even more to the active patronage of Bishop Fell. Up to 1669 the printing was all done in private houses, but in that and the twenty following years it was carried on in the Sheldonian Theatre, though the clearing away the presses for the Encænæ must have been an annual inconvenience. From the Sheldonian the press was transferred to a private house in Cat Street, known as Fell's Building, though the imprint "E Theatro Sheldoniano" continued in use for some time after the move. From 1712 to 1830 the business was carried on at the Clarendon Building. The opening of the "Clarendon Press," as it now exists, in 1830, was followed by a great increase in output, due partly to the Tractarian movement, but mainly to the much extended facilities offered by the new premises. The subsequent history of the Press, save for a check in 1856, owing to the Crimean War, has been one of continued progress.

"In addition to the chart, Mr. Madan gave the following rough estimate of the output of the Press during successive half-centuries:

1585-1600.....	125
1601-1650.....	1,170
1651-1700.....	1,520
1701-1750.....	1,000
1751-1800.....	1,100
1801-1850.....	3,200
1851-1885.....	5,000

The total output may thus be put approximately as 13,000.

"Mr. Jenkinson who was present, suggested that the establishment of the Oxford Press in 1585 was due to the example set by Cambridge three years earlier."

OBITUARY NOTE.

THOMAS NAST, the most famous American cartoonist of his day, died December 7 at Guayaquil, Ecuador, from yellow fever, after an illness of three days. Mr. Nast was born September 27, 1840, at Landau, Bavaria. He came to New York in 1846, and made his first studies in art while doorkeeper at Bryant's Gallery of Paintings, at Broadway and Thirteenth Street, New York. Shortly after, he obtained a position at Frank Leslie's and studied at the Academy of Design in the evenings. He went to England to sketch the Heenan and Sayers fight in 1860, the publication of which in New York created a sensation. While abroad he joined the Garibaldians, and was present at the sieges of Capua and Gaeta. Returning to New York he obtained a position on Harper's Weekly, for which he did his most brilliant and notable work. Owing to some difference of opinion between the publishing firm and Nast, shortly after Grant's re-election, Nast's cartoons, though regularly drawn each week and paid for, were suppressed by Harper & Brothers. After his contract expired Nast attempted several publications under his own name—but his star had set and other men had taken his place. In May this year President Roosevelt nominated Mr. Nast to be Consul General at Guayaquil.

NOTES ON AUTHORS.

It appears that some years ago the late Dr. Parker, of the City Temple in London, published through T. Fisher Unwin a novel entitled "Wilmot's Child," which he put out under the pseudonym of "Any Nynne."

MISS FRANCES POWER COBBE, authoress and philanthropist, celebrated her eightieth birthday on December 4, having been born on that day in 1822, at Brighton, England. A committee representing a large number of Miss Cobbe's friends in England and America presented to her a congratulatory address as an expression of sincere regard.

ELLEN GLASGOW wrote her first novel and came to New York City to publish it while she was still in her teens. Because she could not sell it she wrote another; that also was refused by several of the largest publishing houses. As a last expedient she submitted the second manuscript anonymously to a publisher she had not yet tried. This time her novel was accepted, and it turned out later that the publisher's reader had reported his belief that the novel was written by Harold Frederic. This was the beginning of the career of the very successful author of "The Battleground," whose publishers have recently issued a beautiful illustrated edition of "The Voice of the People," and a volume of her poems printed in a luxurious style by De Vinne.

JOURNALISTIC NOTES.

THE Christmas Number of The Music Trades, a weekly published from 135 Fifth Avenue, New York, under the editorship of John C. Freund, is an interesting issue even outside of the circle for which it is specially published. It contains interesting bits of musical and dramatic history and sketches of music publishers, besides accounts of the manufacture of musical instruments, their makers, etc.

THE new literary quarterly, Journal of Comparative Literature, already announced by us, will be launched next month. Its editors are Professor George Edward Woodberry and Dr. Joel Elias Spingarn of Columbia University, and Professor Fletcher of Harvard. The new journal will be devoted to the general field of international literature, and will draw its contributions from all countries. Its articles are to be printed, as a rule, in the language in which they are written, but the right is reserved to translate for convenience into either English or French. More than twenty foreign scholars will co-operate with the American editors in the publication.

COLONEL GEORGE HARVEY, president of Harper & Brothers and proprietor of the North American Review, bid in at auction last week the properties of The Metropolitan Magazine and the New York Daily Telegraph. Colonel Harvey's plans are to make of The Metropolitan a popular magazine whose chief mission will be to tell about New York. John Kendrick Bangs is to edit the magazine on these lines when the reorganization is completed. The Telegraph, whether under its present or a new name, will be turned into a clean, wholesome journal, such as they have in England, devoted to the best interests of sport, the opera and the drama. The business management of the Telegraph is to be in the hands of Walter H. Turner.

LITERARY AND TRADE NOTES.

M. D. ANCKER, for years connected with J. B. Lippincott Co., and more recently with H. M. Rosenblatt & Co., will hereafter represent Langfeld Brothers.

MEYER BROTHERS COMPANY, New York, have just issued in an attractive cloth binding The Theatre Magazine for 1902. The volume gives a survey of the drama for the year, fully illustrated with portraits, etc.

E. P. DUTTON & Co. have brought out in book form the article on "Zionism and Anti-Zionism" that appeared in The Quarterly Review for April. A map of Europe is included in the book showing the density of the Jewish population in shades of color.

HARPER & BROTHERS have just issued a second edition of "Harper's Encyclopædia of United States History." The new edition contains an addition in the form of twenty-four photogravure portraits of the Presidents of the United States, from Washington to Roosevelt.

THE C. M. CLARK PUBLISHING Co. will bring out early next year William Henry Carson's new novel, dealing with Italian life. They will also bring out after the holidays "On Satan's Mount," a new novel by Dwight Tilton, author of "Miss Petticoats," which is now in its 60th thousand.

GEORGE P. ROWELL & Co., 10 Spruce Street, New York, have published a list of "Leading Newspapers, Considered by States from the Advertiser's Standpoint," compiled by the editor of Printer's Ink. The reputation of the author and the importance of the subject should commend the list to all connected with publicity departments or interested in advertising in any way.

THE death of the widely-known pastor of the City Temple, London, will lead to the earlier publication of "The Life of Joseph Parker," by his long-time friend and associate, Dr. William Adamson, which the Fleming H. Revell Company had announced as in preparation. The author is adding a final chapter relating to the last days. The work will now probably appear before the holidays.

RAY WILLIAMS, the right-hand man of Elbert Hubbard, of the Roycroft Shop, according to a Syracuse despatch of the New York Sun, has joined the opposition to the philanthropist of East Aurora, N. Y., and is now in Syracuse to confer with St. Gerome, the sculptor, who, having quarrelled with the gentle "Fra Elbert," has started a shop in that city. Hubbard's wife is also adding to his discomfort by suing for a divorce.

THE LOTHROP PUBLISHING COMPANY have recently acquired from Small, Maynard & Company all the rights in Richard Burton's three volumes of verse, "Dumb in June," "Memorial Day," and "Lyrics of Brotherhood," and in his volume of essays, "Literary Likings," of which later book they are publishing a new edition. Mr. Burton is associated with the Lothrop firm in the capacity of editor, and it is therefore natural that his books should be taken by them.

THE MACMILLAN COMPANY will bring out this month Sir Walter Besant's magnum opus on "London in the Eighteenth Century." This will be a large quarto of about seven hundred pages with about 104 illustrations from contemporary prints and a map. Among the subjects dealt with will be the appearance of the City and the Streets; Church and Chapel; Government and the Trade of the City; Manners and Customs; Society and Amusements; Crime, Policy, Justice and Debtors' Prisons.

THE title of Charles Wagner's new book, which McClure, Phillips & Company will publish early next spring, will be "The Better Way." It does not follow the French title, "L'Ami." Wagner is the picturesque pastor of the Lutheran Church in Paris, whose doctrines of simplicity and sanity in modes of living have so impressed that giddy capital. His previous book, "The Simple Life," is now in its sixth edition. This is the volume which President Roosevelt mentioned in several of his public speeches, saying he wished it could be used as a tract throughout the country.

G. P. PUTNAM'S SONS have in preparation a work on "The German Revolution of 1849," by Charles W. Dahlinger, who received the facts from his father a prominent "achtundvierziger." Mr. Dahlinger, we understand, gives a clear and spirited account of the final struggle in Baden for the maintenance of Germany's first attempt to establish a national representative government. Messrs. Putnam have postponed the publication of "St. Augustine and His Age," by Joseph McCabe, and of Dr. Minot J. Savage's work on spiritism or telepathy, entitled "Results of Psychical Research."

R. H. RUSSELL, New York, has made an exceedingly beautiful and artistic book of "Ad Astra," containing selections from the "Divine Comedy" of Dante, which have been brought together with great intelligence and sympathy by Margaret Armstrong, who planned the work, in collaboration with Helen Maitland Armstrong. Both executed the illustrations, which are done in a spirit of perfect sympathy with the text, and include 75 full-page drawings, decorations, etc., with a frontispiece in photogravure. The book is exquisitely printed on deckle-edge vellum paper, and bound in boards, with a vellum back.

D. APPLETON & Co. have in preparation a highly artistic edition of the works of James Fenimore Cooper, with elaborate introductions by Edward Everett Hale, Captain Alfred T. Mahan and the late Paul L. Ford. By fortuitous circumstances the publishers are enabled to include in this edition a complete set of the celebrated Darley illustrations printed from the original plates. The publication of the Darwin letters announced by D. Appleton & Co. will be postponed until after the holidays. The letters will appear in two volumes, edited by Francis Darwin. They have also decided to postpone Sidney Whitman's "Personal Reminiscences of Bismarck."

RICHARD LE GALLIENNE announces that he will publish on his own account early next year a rendering in verse of odes from "The Divan of Hafiz," which, as in the case of his paraphrase of Omar Khayyam, he has made from literal prose versions of the poet, supplemented by his own fancy. Three of the odes are to be published shortly in The Fortnightly Review; a fourth one (No. 192) is attached to his circular. The issue will be limited to 300 copies on small paper, in octavo size, at $15 net each, and 35 copies on large paper in small folio size, at $25 net each. Mr. Le Gallienne may be addressed at The Schuyler, 59 W. Forty-fifth Street, New York.

CHARLES SCRIBNER'S SONS expect to publish before the holidays "Literary Landmarks of Oxford," by Laurence Hutton, which is said to be a worthy companion to Mr. Hutton's interesting books which have made the title of "Literary Landmarks" a hallmark for conscientious work in the field which the author covers. The volume will be illustrated by Herbert Railton. "Bookbinders and Their Crafts," by Miss S. T. Prideaux, may also be expected this month. The author discusses English, Scottish, French, and Italian bindings, early stamped bindings, pattern making, etc. The edition of the work is limited to 500 numbered copies, each being illustrated with designs by the author and others.

RALPH FLETCHER SEYMOUR, Fine Arts Building, Chicago, has in press "The Art of the People," a reprint of the address delivered by William Morris before the Birmingham Society of Arts in 1879. This volume will be the first of a series "intended to set forth the thoughts of leaders in the movement for the broader understanding of art and its relation to work." It will also be the first to be printed from a font of type designed by and cast by Mr. Seymour, who also announces a reprint of "The Song of Demeter and Her Daughter Persephone," translated by Walter Pater, and "Twelve Songs," by Maurice Maeterlinck, now first translated into English by Professor Martin Schutze with a sketch of the author by the translator, and twelve quaint illustrations by a French artist.

DODD, MEAD & Co. expect to publish this month "The Bending of the Twig," by Walter Russell, well known as a painter of children's portraits. His book will be composed of a number of sketches, each covering a special phase of child life from the child's point of view. There will be over 100 illustrations in the book, more than 60 of these being full-page. They will bring out early next year "Red-Head," a new story of Kentucky life, by John Uri Lloyd, author of "Stringtown on the Pike," with illustrations by Reginald Birch; a new edition of Lübke's "Outlines of the History of Art," revised, enlarged and edited by Russell Sturgis; also, "In the Palaces of the Sultan," by Mrs. Anna Bowman Dodd, who, as the guest of General Horace Porter, was received by the Sultan, and enjoyed exceptional facilities for studying the Sultan's palaces and parks.

THE OXFORD UNIVERSITY PRESS has just published the complete works of John Lyly, now for the first time collected. Mr. John Warwick Bond has edited the volumes, to which he contributes an account of the life of the author, whose immense importance to English literature is beginning to receive a tardy recognition. Attention to the substance of Lyly's work and recognition of its literary bearings have hitherto been found chiefly abroad. Mr. Bond notes that almost everywhere far more attention has been paid to euphuism than to the matter of the euphuist's work, or to the man. Lyly, it is pointed out, was the first who made Englishmen feel that prose was an art; he was the first English novelist, and the first regular English dramatist. The editor suggests that there is far more dramatic credit due, and far more influence on Shakespeare attributable to Lyly than to Marlowe or any other of those with whom the euphuist has been usually classed.

P. BLAKISTON'S SON & Co., Philadelphia, will publish at once a unique contribution to biographical literature in a work entitled "Biographic Clinics: the Origin of the Ill-health of De Quincey, Carlyle, Darwin, Huxley and Browning." The author, Dr. George M. Gould, has gathered from the biographies, writings and letters of the five named men every reference to their ill health. Each endured, as is well known, a life of suffering which made almost every day a torment, and by which their work and worth as an asset of the nation and civilization was conditioned and often rendered morbid. The cause of their affliction was an utter mystery to their physicians. No explanation explained, and no cure cured. Dr. Gould has gone into the

"why" of this very thoroughly, and the conclusion reached by him, from logic and from a careful summary of the clinical symptoms, is that each of the writers suffered from eyestrain, and that scientific correction of their visual defects would have transformed their lives of misery into lives of happiness.

HENRY HOLT & Co. will publish shortly "Differential and Integral Calculus," by Professor W. H. Echols, of the University of Virginia, a work which is said to treat its subject with simplicity and clearness and to abound in examples, geometrical illustrations and figures. The emphatic success of Hartwig's "General Principles of Zoology" in this country has moved Messrs. Holt & Co. to issue the author's "Text-Book of Zoology," translated and edited for American students by Professor J. S. Kingsley, of Tufts College. The earlier book was but the first part of this work, which the publishers will issue this month. This book has an international reputation, having been used in Germany, Denmark and Sweden, and translated into French and Italian. The American edition will contain over six hundred illustrations, many of them not to be found in the German edition. Professor Hertwig considers the problems of this science both historically and in the light of modern research, and writes so clearly and attractively that his books find favor with general readers as well as with students.

THE NEW AMSTERDAM BOOK COMPANY announces the immediate publication of Harmon's "A Journal of Voyages and Travels in the Interior of North America, between the 47th and 58th Degrees of North Latitude, extending from Montreal nearly to the Pacific, a distance of about 5000 miles, including an Account of the Principal Occurrences, during a Residence of nineteen years, in different parts of the Country," chiefly among the Indians. The work, which contains also a concise description of the face of the country, its inhabitants, their manners, customs, religion, etc., and specimens of the languages most extensively spoken, together with an account of the principal animals found in the forests and prairies of the region travelled, was written by Daniel Williams Harmon, a partner in the Northwest Company, and was revised and edited by Daniel Haskell, who is said to have introduced religious reflections not made by Harmon. The present issue will be an unabridged reprint of the Andover edition printed by Flag & Gould in 1820, with portrait and maps, and will be added to their well-known Commonwealth Library.

HOUGHTON, MIFFLIN & Co. bring the present year of publishing to a close with the output of a baker's dozen of most interesting volumes. Five of these are brought out this week, as follows: John Burroughs, whose name is generally connected with out-door themes, has made a contribution of no common order to literature and criticism in a volume entitled "Literary Values, and Other Papers." "Americans in Process" deals with the work of turning foreigners into Americans, and contains chapters by experienced "settlement workers," edited by Robert A. Woods, editor of "The City Wilderness." In "Where American Independence Began," by Daniel Munro Wilson, they present a continuous narrative of the patriots of old Braintree and Quincy, Mass., notably of the Adamases and the Quincys. The volume will contain nearly fifty illustrations, including some fine reproductions of famous portraits and views of historic places. Vincent Y. Bowditch has brought together the memoirs of his father, in two handsome volumes, entitled "Life and Correspondence of Henry Ingersoll Bowditch." Dr. Bowditch long enjoyed a national reputation not only as an eminent physician and an authority on consumption and pulmonary diseases, but as an enthusiastic anti-slavery man in the days when to be so brought unpopularity and peril. Another work of interest to the student of American history will be "Correspondence of the Colonial Governors of Rhode Island, 1729-1775," collected from the state archives and elsewhere, and edited by Gertrude S. Kimball. This work is published for the Society of Colonial Dames in Rhode Island, and will be in two volumes, the first of which will be brought out immediately. They have just ready "Molière," by Leon H. Vincent, a companion volume to the author's charming essays on "Hotel de Rambouillet," etc.; also, the concluding volumes (XIII. and XIV.) of Professor Sargent's exhaustive work on "The Silva of North America." In the department of literature they will publish very shortly "A History of English Literature," by William E. Simonds, Professor of English Literature at Knox College, intended primarily for high schools; a new edition of Botta's "Handbook of Universal Literature," revised to 1902 by Henry W. Boynton; the first volume of a sumptuous limited edition of "The Essays of Montaigne," in the translation by John Florio, edited by George B. Ives, who also contributes notes and a bibliography; also, a special limited edition of Edmund Spenser's "Prothalamion and Epithalamion," with illustrations and decorations by Edwin H. Blashfield. Other books to be brought out before the close of the year are a "Supplement to the Literature of American History," edited and annotated by Philip P. Wells, librarian of Yale Law School; also, an Index to the Atlantic Monthly from 1888 to 1901, arranged by titles and by authors.

THE AMERICAN CATALOGUE

of books in print and for sale July 1, 1876, compiled under the direction of F. LEVROLD, and its supplements, 1876-84, 1884-90, 1890-95, and 1895-1900, compiled under the editorial direction of R. R. BOWKER, aims to present all the bibliographical features of the books in the American market, arranged in the first part alphabetically by both authors and titles, and in the second part alphabetically by subjects.

The Catalogue and its supplementary volumes form the only approximately complete guide in existence to the American books of the day, so arranged as to make reference easy from whatever direction the inquiry may come, whether from that of the author, or the title, or the subject. It not only furnishes the desired information about any particular book of which the consumer is in search, but shows what others there are by the same author or on the same subject in which he is interested. To the bookseller, therefore, it is valuable both in filling orders and in stimulating business; to the librarian, in supplying gaps and proportioning his collection; and to all who are practically concerned with books, in furnishing information which nowhere else is obtainable by so convenient a method, if obtainable at all.

The author-and-title volume of the 1876 volume is out of print. A limited number of the subject volume may be had in half leather binding at $15.

The volumes covering the periods 1876-84 and 1884-90 are also out of print.

A Key to Books in Print

In the 1902 PUBLISHERS' TRADE LIST ANNUAL

the books of the 246 publishers who contributed the lists bound up in alphabetical order in the Catalogues volume, are indexed, by author, title and subject catchword, furnishing, by means of 140,000 entries, ready reference to the books of the leading publishers in print on July 1, 1902, and to forthcoming books of which they could furnish information in August. The Index volume and the Catalogues volume of

will be found the most useful, as well as the least expensive, single book trade reference work yet issued, especially for the booksellers and small libraries who cannot afford to buy many trade tools. Price, $2 for the Catalogues volume and $5 for the Index volume, separate, or $7 together, absolutely net.

The Catalogues volume is a huge octavo, probably the largest volume now issued, reaching, with 1902, 5700 pages, being $8\frac{1}{4}$ inches in thickness and weighing 20 pounds. Directions for enclosure delivery in New York should accompany the order, unless shipment is to be by express at the charge of the subscriber.

The Index volume, an octavo of 1114 pages, will be sent on approval to any bookseller or library enclosing 10 cents for partial postage. Of the Catalogues volume less than 300 remain unsubscribed, and the edition of the Index volume is also limited. Address,
